SUPPLEMENT TO

1. There are at this time three groups of Central American revolutionaries, according to [REDACTED] in Nicaragua. Of the three, the first group, represented by the Patriotic Nicaraguan Committee, has connections with Communist elements and is headed by Carlos Castillo Ibarra, Juan Jose Meza, Edelberto Torres, and Adolfo Ortega Diaz. The other two groups are factions of the former Caribbean Legion, and are under the direction of Juan Rodriguez, and Juan Bosch, respectively. Miguel Ramirez and Alejandro Cardenas are aligned with Bosch, while Carlos Pasos is closer to Rodriguez.
2. The three groups have limited contact with each other, principally in Habana, Cuba, which, according to source, is the current center of revolutionary planning. For the present, source found that the plans were directed mainly against the Dominican Republic rather than Nicaragua and [REDACTED] it was extremely doubtful that any serious attempt could be made to overthrow General Somoza for many months.
